JOHN HOLLAND

The Frost Street pedestrian underpass will be closed from Monday 21 July until late 2025, while John Holland undertakes construction works in the area.

Work being done

Works during this time will include the demolition of the existing culverts and rail bridge infrastructure, installation of new drainage and rail bridge, and relocation of underground utilities.

What can I expect?

- Frost Street pedestrian underpass closure from Monday 21 July to late 2025
- Pedestrian access will be maintained via the station platform using the Rowe Street accessible ramp and the Railway Street carpark
- The temporary access ramp is accessible for mobility aids, scooters and prams. Cyclists must dismount when using the ramp and station platform
- The Frost Street pedestrian underpass will temporarily reopen in late 2025, before it is permanently closed in 2026 when the new station underpass is opened.
- Traffic management will be in place to ensure vehicle and pedestrian safety
- Nearby residents may experience some noise.

How we're managing impacts

- Traffic management and reduced road speeds
- Pedestrian detour to maintain access
- Environmental controls in place for noise, dust and vibration.
